WHAT THE FOURTH MEANS

WHEN the flags of the battleship Nevada were brought to this city there was much patriotic fervor demonstrated. The banners typified the outward and visible demonstration of the spirit of loyalty and pride of country that is within us. There may be some old gronches or flippant younger folk who deem such outbursts of patriotic zeal mere piffle, but there still exists in the breasts of the best of us and the worst of us a very laudable impulse to get up and shout when the Declaration of Independence is being read or when the Fourth of July orator arrives at the point of his peroration and uses over and over again the trite expressions that get the dust blown off them once a year, when they show up just as good as new, mellowed by usage and hallowed by age.

The people of Tonopah missed a splendid opportunity to enthuse the other evening in a local "movie" house when there was displayed to a large audience something of local interest and inspiration to patriotic pride equaling the battle flags of the superdreadnaught Nevada. It was a "current event" picture and showed in excellent light and splendid detail the gunboat Tonopah, the first of its type in the navies of the world, affectionately appellationed the "mother of the mosquito fleet," for its duty is to act as guardian and mentor for half a dozen of Uncle Sam's formidable little submarines, the sort whose torpedoes laugh at armor plate and can successfully attack anything that floats. Although the screen plainly announced that the vessel bearing the name of this city would be shown, there was no applause, save from the tow-headed kids in the front rows, who are so full of the spirit of '76, due to their animalic natures and patriotic training in the schools that they will cheer anything of a martial nature, even if it be only a "hamfat" cop chasing a "super" burglar up a back alley on the screen.

But even if we did pass up the Tonopah opportunity the other evening we will have a chance to display our patriotic zeal within less than two weeks when the Fourth of July services are held in this city. People may have gained some sort of an impression that the mardi gras ball, the prize fight and the horse races will constitute the major features of the celebration, but in reality they are only accompaniments to relieve the mind of the stress of the more serious business of the day. It was not a declaration of frivolity that was signed, or adopted, on July 4, 1776, but a document guaranteeing the liberties of the American people and safeguarding them from oppression by a foreign power—that sentence sounds real Fourth of July in itself, doesn't it? The real business of the meeting here Sunday a week hence is to hear that Declaration read and its principles expounded, to sing patriotic songs, to wave the Red, White and Blue and to applaud stormily every reference to the big, bold, bald-headed American Eagle and sic semper tyrannus.

POOR FOOD AND PURE FOOD

CONVINCING evidence of the wholesale use of food substitutes is found in the assertion by Secretary McAdoo that the government has lost $27,000,000 due in stamp and special taxes on oleomargarine. This estimate is believed by federal officials to be low, but it is sufficient to evidence the tremendous amount of butter substitute that is used in the United States. There is no evidence that this substitute for butter is injurious to the system and it has adherents who claim it superior to the natural product in flavor, but that has nothing to do with the fact that it is on the defensive, merely claiming that it is "just as good."

There are alleged maple syrups on the market that have been forced by the law to first cease claiming to be the unadulterated product of the sugar maple, then that they were compounds of maple syrup and pure cane sugar, and finally to admit that they simply had the "maple flavor," which is obtained by the use of a chemical.

So many substitutes and artificialities are on the market that one sometimes wonders what has become of the genuine articles. There was a time when buckwheat cakes brought back the memory of the drowsing bees in the fields of honey laden buckwheat blossoms, but now the "maple flavor" is dribbled over the discs of bran that have been greased with oleomargarine. The pure food and drugs act has done much to remove from the table imitations and adulterations that are palpably injurious to the human anatomy, but it has left many substitutes that are so far in actual taste and nurturing power from the real articles that dining ceases to be the pleasure intended by the Almighty when he created the senses of smelling and tasting and becomes an irksome gustatory duty.

LOCAL CALIGULAS

IT is little wonder that Judge Averill overruled the justice court and dismissed the proceedings in the so-called Corona avenue case. The ordinance under which the conviction was secured in the lower court was not worth the paper it was printed on. It is but a sample of the legislation to which Tonopah is subjected by its self-styled lawmakers.

In the first place there are grave doubts that this is a regularly incorporated city. It was incorporated, if at all, by the light of a dark lantern. There is no record of any preliminaries, such as a petition. There is not proof that a petition would have afforded evidence that there were sufficient voters in the community at the time to make such an act legal. Since styling themselves city councilmen, the county commissioners have ground out a number of ordinances, at least a handbill assures the public that No. 32 has been enacted. No one knows what these ordinances are nor how to comply with them. So careless and negligent were the commissioners, so-called city councilmen, that the chairman neglected to sign the ordinance under which the Corona avenue case was brought and it appeared at the trial that the ordinance had not been given publicity, it having only showed its face once in print and then was read by very few people. Caligula made his laws just that way and it is little wonder this his is one of the most hated and despised of all names in history.

Since it has been conclusively proven that King Constantine was neither poisoned nor stabbed, the bulletins from his bedside cease to possess the keen interest they had during the rumor days.

All we can say is that if "Dr. Meyer" came across to ferret out our unpreparedness, he went to a lot of unnecessary trouble.—Washington Post.

KNOW THY COUNTRY

I—Introductory

"Know America" is a slogan that should ring out from every school room, office, farm and shop in this nation. No man can aspire to a higher honor than to become a capable citizen, and no one can merit so distinguished a title until he is well informed of the resources, possibilities and achievements of our country.

This is a commercial age and civilization is bearing its most golden fruit in America. We are noted for our industrial achievements as Egypt was noted for her pyramids; Jerusalem for her religion; Greece for her art; Phoenicia for her fleets; Chaldea for her astronomy and Rome for her laws. Likewise we have men who will go down in the world's history as powerful products of their age. For, standing at the source of every gigantic movement that aways civilization is a great man. The greatest minds travel in the greatest direction and the commercial geniuses of this age would have been the sculptors, poets, philosophers, architects, and artists of earlier civilizations.

As Michael Angelo took a rock and with a chisel hewed it into the image of an angel that ever beckons mankind upward and onward, Hitt took the desert of the Northwest and with hands of steel made it blossom like a rose, dotted the valleys with happy homes and built cities in waste places.

As Gutenberg took blocks of wood and whittled them into an alphabet and made a printing press that flashed education across the continent like a ray of light upon a new born world, McCormick took a bar of iron and bent it into a reaper and with one sweep of his magic mind broke the shackles that enslaved labor of generations yet unborn, and gave mankind freedom from drudgery, and lifted the human race into a higher zone of life.

As Nelson organized the English navy and made England mistress of the sea, enabling the British Isles to plant her flag upon every continent washed by the ocean's waves, and to make footstools of the islands of every water, Morgan organized a banking system that has made America master of the world's finances, brought Kings to our cashier's windows, the nations of the earth to our discount desks and placed under the industries of this nation a financial system as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar.

There is no study quite so interesting as progress; no sound so magic as the roar of industry and no sight so inspiring as civilization in action. A full realization of America's part in the great events of the world, present and future will thrill every human heart with pride, patriotism and faith in Republican institutions.

Through the courtesy of the Agricultural and Commercial Press Service, the readers of this paper will be permitted to study America; her agricultural, manufacturing and mineral development, mercantile, banking and transportation systems which are the wonder of the world. The first article of the series will deal with transportation and will appear at an early date.
